Concept Papers “Capacity Development in the Youth Sector”

Country: Multi Country

Client: GTZ

Year: 10 - 12/2009

AVEDIS has been requested by the GTZ Sector Project Children and Youth Rights to develop two concept papers on the issue of capacity development in the youth sector. Based on a systemic approach to the capacity development paradigm, two papers will be produced: on institutional-organisational capacity development and on human resources development. The purpose of the papers is to systematise the work of GTZ in the youth sector vis-à-vis the current programmatic thinking, in order to enhance the role of youth promotion in German development cooperation. Thereby, the concepts papers will draw on good practices from youth projects around the globe and on various subject-matter related publications. In specific, the papers will illustrate how approaches to organisational development and network management, as well as the training of professionals in the social sector can contribute to improving youth promotion at national, regional and local levels.
